Mr. Howard said our trade and commerce had been so much injured by a war-carried on during several years, the country wanted to know the exact status. The dignity and interest of this nation require that this Govern-ment should take such measures as will secure the immediate restoration of peace and the reinstatement of the Republican Government. The resolu-tion was laid aside for the bill regulating the ten-ure of office, and the latter was discussed up to the time of adjournment. The House took up the Bill for the admission of Nebraska into the Union. The Senate had inserted the condition to admission that the word "white" in the Nebraska Constitution should not discriminate against citizens on account of race or color. Mr. Boutwell moved to amend by substituting as a condition precedent, that the Nebraska Legislature should give suffrage to all, without distinction of race or color.

During the debate Mr. Davis, of New York, decided that if Congress had a right to impose conditions upon a new State, it could also enforce these conditions without the consent of the people. Farnesworth said that Congress plainly had that right. It was simply granting a Territory a charter to become a State, and there was as much authority to impose a condition as to impose a condition on a Territory while it is a Territory. Wirt, Kyard and others opposed the Bill, when it was passed, with Boutwell's amendment, 103 against 53. The Bill for the admission of Colorado, with

THE NEEDLE GUN.—In a recent lecture George Alfred Townsend said: "While in Europe I fired a needle gun. It was awkward as the first pair of skates, and so heavy that I thought it an imposi-tion to be obliged to hold the whole of it myself. It seemed enough avoirdupois for an entire pla-toon to carry. There is a knob moon it as big and as hard to turn as your door-knob, when you go home from your "lodge" at midnight. You must hit this knob with the palm of your hand, drive it down, draw it back, put in your cartridge, hit it up again, and pull a trigger. This drives a darning needle through a cartridge, and sends the ball about half the distance of a Springfield rifle ball. about half the distance of a Springheid rine bat.
You bruise your hand, swear, and after a dozen rounds have been fired, the breech of your gun feels like a red hot poker. A regiment of men at work with this weapon look as if they were cracking walnuts, or opening oysters, or killing mosquitoes. You can certainly fire it six times a minute after six years' practice."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DAILY NEWS.] IMPEACHMENT.

Washington, January 12.—The impeachment has taken definite shape since my last letter on that subject to THE NEWS, and the inquisition may now be considered duly inaugurated under auspices duly Radical. The first act of the committee was to have a sort of informal talk over the whole matter, to which ASHLEY, the mover of the impeachment resolution now before them, was invited. Mr. Rogers, the sole Democrat on the committee, received no intimation that there was to be conference of this character, and, therefore, failed to put in an appearance. This initial discussion of submitted. This was in nowise a surprise to his partisan friends on the committee, who have known, throughout, of his entire irresponsibility, and want of even mental capacity in the conduct of legislation. The talk that ensued finally resulted in a determination to make a pretence of appointing three of the committee—Boutwell, of Massachusetts, Wilson, of Iowa, and Williams, of Pennsylvania—to act as a sub-committee for the exclusive management of the investigation against __ndiew Johnson. This is simply a ruse, whereby it is prober, in ignorance of the movements and events in committee. The remaining members will be aw-fully posted and allied with the progress of the in-vestigation, as though they belonged to the trio, nominally set up as the grand and exclusive inquisitors of this star chamber examination. Up to this time the Judiciary Committee have held daily meettime the Judiciary Committee have held daily meetings, but without taking any testimony in the premises. It has been proposed to call Jno. W. Forney, the publisher of the Chronicle, at some one of the secret seances of the committee. His surprising natural facility for getting up evidence to suit any emergency, as demonstrated a few years since during the progress of the famous Forrest divorce case, doubtless actuated the committee in agreeing to a summons. It is but fair to say that the majority of Radicals in either wing of the Capitol scout the idea of im-peachment with the utmost derision—not from a lack of malignity towards the Administration, but from a ready understanding that in the institution of such a course of procedure lies the certain germ of party discomiture and ruin. As for Mr. Johnson, I do not think he loses any of his nightbecause of the inception of this farce; and, so far as his own course was to apply to such an exigency, that has been determined months ago, when the atmosphere was less rife with Radical denunciation that now. I have known, almost from the first, what that determination has been, and I apprehend that in the actual visitation of there can be no harm in divulging the foundation upon which it rests. Once summoned foundation upon which it rests. Once summoned to answer charges of impeachment, Mr. Johnson will return a message in writing, addressed to Congr. ss., in which he will proclaim, first, to the House: "I deny the validity of your indictment, for it was found by a Grand Jury incomplete and insufficient for its preferment." At d to the Senate: "I refuse your panel; it is lacking in the presence of treaty. They magnifice whose sheares presence of twenty-two members, whose absence heprives your body of the semblance of right to constitute a jury for the impeachment of the hum-blest ervant of the Government." If this Conress cannot try the President, it cannot impeach nim; and from those that understand the President's will, in action conforming to previously expressed conviction, it is easy to see that he will submit to no forced abdication of the Presidency, and that if such a policy is meditated and attempt ed, it would precipitate a bloody collision in the very streets of the Capital, and maybap at the portals of the White House. About two-thirds of the banks, by their own monthly statements to the Comptroller, are not complying with this provision, and the other third has hit upon the sharp practice of keeping this deposit in the spate of compround interest.

They were gathered from various parts of this State by energetic agents, were all excellent specimens of physical health, and went away in the best of spirits.

CHARLESTON, S. C., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 16, 1867.

General Beauregard on Public Affairs. The subjoined letter from General BEAUREGARD to the editor of the New Orleans Times will be read with more than common interest—since it not only expresses the sentiments of one of the leading chiefs of the South in the late war, but corrects some statements that have been made in regard to a speech imputed to him in which opinions were expressed that excited the surprise of those who supposed he was correctly reported. He did not make the speech ascribed to him.

The sentiments expressed by General BEAURE-GARD in this letter are just such as we would expect from a brave and noble-minded soldier, who fought while there was a ray of hope, and only surrendered when all was lost save honor. Such the question of prosecuting the Executive elicited a fact that every old congressional observer had already surmised, viz.: that ASHLEY was without proof or reason to back up the charges he had culpuitted. This man initial discussion of a man cannot, under any circumstances, when overpowered in a war of wespons, condescend to car y on a war of words:

New Orleans, January 10, 1867. WM. H. C. King, Esq., Editor of the New Orleans

Times: In your letter this morning you publish an arti-cle from the New York Herald containing some remarks relative to the speech I am reported to have made at Canton, Miss., to the Congressional excursionists lately in this city. The Herald is in error. I made no speech at Canton or elsewhere to those excursionists; but conversed with them freely, and openly told them the South had fought freely, and openly told them the South had fought the North so desperately because it was defending what it conceived to be its constitutional rights; that having appealed however to the arbitration of arms, it yielded to the decision which was given against it; that I believed the people of the South were now willing to accept the Constitution as made by the war and understood by the Supreme $1.50. Court of the United States.

I said also, in my opinion, questions of secession and slavery were fore er settled, and, so far as I was concerned, under no circumstances would I countenance any effort to revive them; that we repairing the damages of war and restoring to our homes some of those comforts and that prosperity which they formerly enjoyed. In answer to the questions of some of the excursionists, if I thought the South would accept the Constitutional Amendment, I replied that, eschewing politics, and attending strictly to private business and the duties of my position, I had little opportunity, except through newspapers, to ascertain the public sentiment on the subject; but if they desired to know my individual opinion, I would say that the South would not, and should not, accept those amendments. should not, accept those amendments, even it presented as a finality, for its interests and manhood forbade it; that we well knew we are now at the mercy of the North, but that the South would never do anything which its the South would never do anything which its honor could not approve to protect its interest, and I believe would remain passive spectators of the struggles for power going on at the North, relying on the sober second-thought and sense of justice of both parties to protect us. I added though, at the fall of the Confederacy, instead of going to a foreign country to swear allegiance to its government, I preferred remaining in my own and swearing allegiance to what I conceived to be its new government.

If in conversation with the excursionists I used the words consolidated overnment when speaking of the United States Government, I meant, of course, the common Federal National Government, operating under the Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States. I remain yours, very respectfully, ed)

The difficulty among the Councilmen originated in the alleged defection of Mr. Brinkman, who have ing, it is said, joined a Ring Democratic caucus, which, with himself, comprised thirteen members, afterward betrayed it to the twelve remaining members of the Poard. ANNIVERSARY BATTLE OF NEW ORLEANS.

From Louisiana.

LABOR PROSPECTS—REPUBLICAN EXECUTIVE COMMIT-TEE-RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED. New Orleans, January 11 .- Advices respecting the attitude of the freedmen and planters, as to the future course of work, are favorable. The former are now generally contracting, where good crops were made last year, for shares, and where bad crops were made, for wages. In cases where planters desire to change terms they must bid high. Amicable feelings seem to prevail every-where, especially where no troops are stationed. The New Orleans Tribune declares the charges against President Johnson contain no specifications of overt acts, and amount only to imputations of moral treason to his party, and can therefore form no basis for impeachment.

POOR OLD THAD !- The result of the Republican caucus at Harrisburg on Thursday, in no Simon Cameron for United States Senator for Pennsylvania, shows conclusively that the Jacobin doctrines of Thad. January 16 . > No. 285 KING STREET. A Nefarious Business.

It is the richly freighted ship that is tracked by the robbers of the sea; and, on the same principle, it is the popular specific that the land buccaneers, called counrfeiters, select for their shining mark.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS stand pre-eminent among medicinal preparations in this country. The demand for them is something wonderful, unparalleled; hence the counterfeiters know full well tha if they can impose their flery. fluids upon the people as that famous tonic, they can make fortunes by the fraud. They are now at work. Detectives are on the trail of some of them, and others have been already brought to book. Let the public second the proprietors in their efforts to baffle the reckless scoundrels who seek at once to poison the community and swindle the firm that has produced the finest Vegetable Bitters ever manufactured Thinking to dodge the law, the counterfeiters are affixing to their bottles names resembling in orthography and ound that of HOSTETTER, such as "HOOHSTETTER." "Hoofstetten," and the like. Will the public be kind enough to look to this, and to see also that the label is all right, with its vignette of St. George and the Dragon, and its tiny note of hand, signed "HOSTETTER & SMITH?" The proprietors will do their part to protect the million from imposition, and they ask the million to be on the alert against the plotters against their health. January 14 6 . HOSTEITER & SMITH.
